

ABSTRACT

A processing system includes a variable volume chamber. A liquid or solid precursor source may be included in the variable volume chamber. The volume of the variable volume chamber may be controlled to provide for a predictable precursor flow to a processing chamber. In some implementations, multiple variable volume chambers may be provided.

10313100.doc